BIOGRAPHY

Founded in 2020, the Hydra Quartet consists of four friends who share a passion for playing everything from classical masterpieces to modern film scores. They do so with a particular fondness for the performance practice that was common during the golden age of Hollywood, resulting in a warm and intense sound.

They met during their studies at the major conservatories in the Netherlands and have since built up a repertoire ranging from Bach to Duke Ellington, as well as from Hans Zimmer to Michael Jackson. They love to create their own arrangements which have helped to instill enthusiasm for the string quartet genre in a wider audience. They have performed in nearly every imaginable concert hall, church or other iconic venue in the Netherlands and many more across Europe.

The quartet has collaborated with Fever Global to make the now immensely popular 'Candlelight Concerts' series a resounding success, both nationally and internationally.

In addition, the quartet regularly collaborates with world renowned musicians such as Nikola Meeuwsen, Carina Vinke, Geronimo Snijtsheuvel and Armin van Buuren, who recently won the Edison audience award for his album 'piano', to which the Hydra Quartet contributed.
